Mounted in a frame

A pair of them in this bedroom

Baseboard meets the register box

Below the window – best effect

Baseboards await installation

Steve has started to strip the staircase

Sunlight on the snow

Bayfield River still flowing free

Heat register box pieces

Master bedroom

What a pretty design

The box is installed over the duct

Patent Aug 3 1886

Where's the spider?

View out the laneway

Bright sunlight on the snow

Brightens the dining room

Jack Frost at work in the garage

Thin line of water in the ice

Quietly awaiting signs of Spring

Basking in the sunlight

Shaded porch

A hat of snow on the light

No, it's not etched glass

That would be Jack Frost again!

Someone has cleared a path

Another heat register

Ready for baseboards

Fall in the river keeps the ice from forming

A blanket of snow on the land

Ready for closet doors

Baseboards are installed

Room side of the door is painted

Another closet ready for doors

Ready for final touchup paint

Quarter round comes last

And of course the closet doors

Heat register in Steve's office

Bright light in the dining room

Sunlight casts a picture on the wall

Cardboard to protect the floors

Treads are stripped

Edging has first coat of finish paint

I get a warm feeling from this sign

Silent sentinels

Back to painting trim

Baseboards await

A single board for Kay's desktop

22 3/8" wide – one board!

Sunset on the ride home

Sunsets are moving northwards

And Simon has had a hard week!
